A reproduction of grainy quality is included in this folder.

3 x 5" B & W photo of the Burien library's 3rd home on 153rd SW and 4th Ave. SW.

The library moved from its former location (2009.0005.001) near the Field House at what is now the Town Square in May, 1956. This was its home, housing twenty-thousand books, until it moved into larger and more modern quarters at 6th SW near SW 146th (2004.0153.001). When this building was sold by the King County Library System, a total of $70,000 was made on the transaction, most of the money going into the new library facility.
